SCAT — Step Test To Be Given to 24

In co-operation with the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey, twenty-four seniors will participate in a standardization program of the new SCAT-STEP test battery which has been in use in our Freshman Orientation Program.

Given to 24

The test will be given on March 27 to twelve senior women and twelve senior men who were selected at random. Our college is one of three schools in Missouri to participate in the program.

The Stroller has been having his moments of amusement when watching the people who stop and read the small signs around the campus with the words "KYDC Month". The stares and puzzled expressions of the readers seemed to indicate that they didn't even know what the letters meant! Oh, that sweet age of innocence. . . .

Game's the Same

While strolling through the Den, the Stroller thought that he had come upon a group of four fine freshman students playing a new game. But upon further observation and inquiry he discovered that this green group had found its way to the Den, decided to play cards, but found themselves without a deck.

What did they do?? They made their own cards by using some 3 by 5 note cards intended for their English 12 research papers.

From the conversation, the Stroller gathered that they were a little bit difficult to shuffle and even harder to read, but some of the luxuries must be sacrificed to satisfy their recreational whims, he supposes. . . .

The Stroller expresses her feeling that the suitcase students who didn't stay around to hear Ralph Marterie's band at the Spring Formal missed something really tops. . . . and so did the ones who were in no condition to hear anything. . . .

Theme From the Apartment

The Stroller is wondering about the rest of you philogynists who entertain (?) frivolous frauleins in your dens of innocence??? Tsk Tsk. . . . And who's permission do YOU have???

Lamkin Laughs Last; Folly Turns Valentine

It's a valentine!! It's an ice rink!! And it has even been a soggy free-for-all on past Walk Out days!! That's right! It is our own "Sweetheart Lake," alias the college pond.

The lake was put in under the administration of President Uel W. Lamkin. At the time the pond was put in, it was filled by a rainfall. Then suddenly, the lake was dry as a bone! It soon rained again. The lake filled, but the water soon disappeared again. A sieve held more water than this lake! The townspeople poked fun at "Lamkin Lake."

An investigation soon solved the problem. It was discovered that the workmen had not been told the land had been drainage-tiled by its previous owner, Thomas Gaunt, to benefit the nursery which he had established there.

Name Is Changed

The fault was remedied. The result is the beautiful "Lamkin Lake" which has since been romantically renamed "Sweetheart Lake" by the students on campus.

Now, many events take place on and near the lake. The winter months find many attempting their skill at ice skating on the frozen lake. In the spring and summer months, one can usually find a fisherman trying his luck, for the lake is stocked with fish.

Big-Game Hunters

Also the biology classes frequent the edges of the little lake to hunt for tiny water animals—a fascinating sport! In the fall the favorite pastime of frosh dippings on Walk Out Day (and sometimes before Walk Out Day) in the lake have been evident.

Land of Logic

Test your "science-sense" with a tour to the Land of Logic. Solve this simple syllogism: If (1) Some Oysters Are Unhappy and (2) No Unhappy Oysters are Amusing . . . what is the logical conclusion? If your answer is Some Oysters Are Not Amusing, you've gained your visa to the Land of Logic where scientists of Interchemical Corporation have planned your tour and will guide your way.

Your first stop is the City of Syllogisms. As you know, a syllogism has two statements (whether true in themselves does not matter). You can test your science sense by finding out what conclusion logically follows, as you did with unhappy oysters. First try and easy one:

Premise A: Henry is in the house.

Premise B: Everyone in the house has webbed fingers.

Conclusion: Henry has webbed fingers.

Premise A: Nothing intelligible ever puzzles me.

Premise B: Logic puzzles me.

Conclusion: Logic is unintelligible.

Then you might like to meet harder ones:

Premise A: No bridges are made of sugar.

Premise B: Some bridges

Bearcat Baseballers Start Spring Training Inside

Despite adverse weather conditions, Bearcat varsity baseball spring training went into its fourth week of scheduled practice under the tutelage of Head Coach Burton Richey.

Coach Richey expressed enthusiasm for the coming horsehide season because of the prospect of nine returning lettermen and several promising rookies.

Nine Return

The nine monogram winners reporting for baseball this season are: Harold Sims and Howie Rolfe, Outfielders; Hank Nardone and Jim Kloewer, Infielders; Gary Holmes, Catcher; and Rod Esch, Bull Durham, Bill Ludwig, and Dale Hansen, Pitchers.

This season's squad originally began with 60 prospects, but was trimmed to 27 men, and eventually will be cut to 20 players.

Thus far, the 'Cat diamond crew has also been hampered by wet weather and has been working out regularly in the Health and P.E. building.

Baseball Coach Richey is being assisted this year by Dale Cramer and Bob Mitchell.

Here is this season's Bearcat baseball schedule:

April 18	Peru Teach., there

Bearcat Tennis Team Prepares for Season

This coming season for the Bearcat Tennis team looks quite promising. Under the direction of Coach Gregory and helpful hints of Dr. Grube, the team as a whole is looking forward to the season starter in a few weeks.

Returning men are: John Breigen, MIAA champ; Jack Freese; John Kelly; and Jerry Rose.

Conclusion: Some picturesque things are not made of sugar.

Premise A: Some South Sea Islanders carry knives.

Premise B: All the people who got off the boat were South Sea Islanders.

Conclusion: No conclusion. It does not logically follow, for instance, even to say that some of the people who got off the boat carried knives.

Premise A: Umbrellas are useful on a journey.

Premise B: What is useless on a journey should be left behind.

Conclusion: Some things, which are not umbrellas, should be left behind on a journey.

Once upon a time a bear came out of its den and walked due south in a straight line for one mile before making a 90 degree turn to the right and walking another mile in a straight line. Twice more the bear made 90 mile in a straight line. At journey's end he found himself back at his den facing due south. What color was the bear?" (answer next week)
